Who are we to question God?

One of the things that is constantly re-iterated in the Bible is that God can do all things. In the reading from Job, it seems that God has lost his patience with Job, and berates him like a wise parent berates his kid who doesn't seem to get it – God has created everything and has power over everything. Who are we, therefore to question God? God is the one who does the questioning, and like Job, we are the people to answer by our faith.

What makes you think you can command God with your wealth and knowledge? Were you around when I created the universe? Where you there when I created the lands and separated them from the seas? When I set up the weather pattern for the earth? It frightens me a little that we try to know more than God, or even think we do. When people thought they could build a tower to get to heaven in Babel, they were punished. God says the same thing to Job.

But Paul tells us in the second reading that because of Christ's death and resurrection, we too, are "in Christ" and can't be seen just from a human point of view, but God is now within us. "Everything has become new". This certainly does not mean that we have become gods, and we must never think of ourselves in that light, but that God has come within us – we are vessels for God, we are "new creations", and we need to act accordingly.

This week I want to challenge you to spend more time seeing the face of Christ in others. – talk to others as though you were talking to God. The result will be charity – love, compassion that "urges us on".

Perhaps we can calm the seas of another's distress, we can be the answer to their prayers to God, we can be the love that God generates and bring our "Godness" to the world around us, instead of being a Judge to their actions. We may not be able to calm the weather's storm, but we can manage to bring peace to the stormy life of another by doing God's work.

And this is just one of the things that can make us "awesome" in the Good News today!

Peace be with you!

Fr Lucius

Congratulations to

Fr Lucius is appointed

Parish Priest of St Mary's Maryborough

It's official we are losing Fr Lucius to Maryborough!! While this is very sad for us here at Living Waters it's wonderful news for Maryborough and even more so for Fr Lucius who will make a very caring & compassionate Pastor to the people of that community. We will begin to look at how our Parish family farewells Fr Lucius over the next little while as we don't have much time – he takes up his post from July 17th. We will keep you informed on how we will do this but in the meantime please give him your own personal best wishes when you see him at Mass, at the Parish Office or around town.

Help End the Pain of Poverty

St Vincent De Paul embarks on their annual Winter Appeal from this weekend and donation envelopes will be at the rear of the church. Your contributions could mean a meal for a family on a cold winters night, a blanket to cover someone doing it tough on the street or in so many other ways that just say loudly "we care" so thank you for your support, let's see how many people we can help.

From the Desk of Mrs Lisa Freeth (APRE)

Last Thursday, our Year One students joined Father Lucius for their first celebration of Liturgy in the church. This group of students had not had the opportunity to visit the church as a cohort due to Covid restrictions. There was much excitement and anticipation about entering such a sacred space.

Year One have been drawing upon Creation stories in the Old Testament to learn about living in accordance with God's plan for all creation, including living safely and happily in community and in loving relationship with God. They have also been learning that we each have a responsibility to care for all creation and use God's gift of freedom to make choices responsibly.

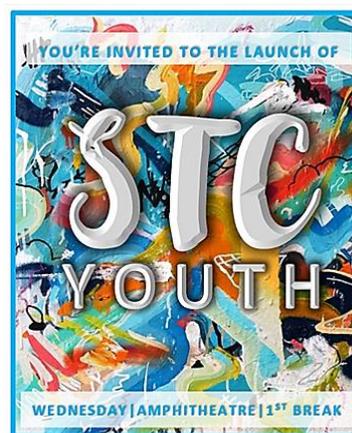

The liturgy was a wonderful celebration of the gift of creation which incorporated prayer, scripture, symbols and song. We were delighted that so many family members were able to join our community of faith on such a special occasion for our students.

From the Desk of Mrs Rachel Fletcher (APRE)

Dear Friends of the College,

We are very excited to announce the launch of STC Youth which will provide our students with an opportunity to discuss matters of faith in a fun filled and safe environment. During our time together we will play some awesome games, give out some prizes of course and introduce students to faith and formation. We are keen to see students from all grades involved and welcome any and all youth who would like to engage with their peers and spirituality. We are so excited to get this initiative off the ground and fostering the meaningful relationships that students will form with one another and with God.

Blessings for the week
